Forest Landscape Restoration and Global Change
Building a capacity development framework

Cora van Oosten
Wageningen UR Centre for Development Innovation
Kigali, July, 2016
The landscape
The landscape
The landscape
The landscape
The landscape
The landscape
The landscape
The landscape
Challenge: Jurisdictional boundaries
Challenge: Jurisdictional boundaries
Challenge: Sectoral boundaries
Challenge: product chain boundaries
From value chains to landscapes
Building “Restoration Readiness”

- Amartya Sen (1999): Development as Freedom: having the capacity to enjoy the freedom
- Kofi Annan (2006): capacity to recognise, understand, change
- Baser & Morgan (2009): Capacity to Change: engage, commit, relate, deliver, learn
Develop and test a curriculum
“Restoration Readiness” curriculum

Landscape leadership & process facilitation

- Achieving coherence in diversity
- Defining restoration pathways
- Design and develop restoration interventions
- Linking to multiple policy frameworks

Adaptive landscape learning

- Adjusting to change
- Delivering goods and services
- Building connections and relations
- Linking to multiple value chains and markets

Landscapes restored
Operationalised in Rwanda???

- A truly integrated curriculum
- Tailored to the needs of practitioners
- Institutionalised in a recognised College
- Knowledge, skills and attitudes
- Delivering a new generation of landscape restoration professionals
Murakoze cyane!